"The Road from Bamberg to Fogle's Mall." TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS.

FORK OF EDISTO, November 6. Newspaper discussions, like scriptural arguments, seldom improve, and I deprecate both. But one who assumes the responsibility of "Fair Play" not only morally compels me to answer his charges through the columns of THE NEWS, but invites me to do so.

"Fair Play," no doubt imagines himself a perfect paragon of probity and equity, and, perhaps, thinks he has performed a wonderful service for the citizens of Bamberg and Orangeburg by setting himself up as the champion of equal justice to all.

He is prematurely apprehensive that I will not answer his questions, and delegates to himself an inordinate degree of arrogance and presumption in propounding questions to me, which he voluntarily undertakes to answer himself-seldom found in one who represents what he purports to be. But to the questions. From 1850 to 1865 I was at school and in the Confederate army. After my return home I From 1880 to 1865 I was at school and in the Confederate army. After my return home I learned that a road had been opened, and a bridge constructed across the Edisto, where the new one is proposed to be erected, and that limited communication with Bamberg from this section had been carried on by means of this bridge during the war. The bridge was destroyed by the Federal army. I did not sign the petition to the Legislauture for the opening of a new road. I signed it for the building of the bridge under the impression that the causeway was intact. The signing of the petition I have explained publicly in werds to, the satisfaction of my auditors, and much better than space will permit me to do here.

and much better than space will permit me to do kere.

I have recently opened a store, but not in this neighborhood of where this road russ. No others of the "disaffected" have done likewise to my knowledge. The opening of the road will not injure my business, as I am nearer Graham's than Bamberg, and invite rather than repel competition.

I fiatly and emphatically deny that any such motive as that indicated by "Fair Play" prompted my opposition to the road in question, and whoever asserts otherwise lies, the "reliable gentlemen" to the contrary notwithstanding.

estly and unhesitatingly deny that I was active in urging upon the cilizens of my section the importance of this road, and that I was "a strong advocate of it until quite recenty,"

I direcervedly and emphatically deny that I and three or four other citizens raised the first objection made to the road, the statements of the "reliable gentlemen" to the contrary notwithstrading?

withstanding."

I was present by chance as a speciator, and not as a mediator, at the meeting of the comsioners, and do not remember that I either agreed or disagreed as to the "course the road should take." I had never surveyed the route, and, therefore, knew nothing about it. The deficiency, raised by subscription, was agreed upon by the commissioners, (those mostly interested in the road,) and this amount will be borne by the taxpayers. The parties will be borne by the taxpayers. The parties calculated that their services as commissioners would amount to twenty-five dollars each, aking an aggregate of one hundred dollars, e amount of the deficiency for building the the amount of the deficiency for building the river bridge alone.

"Paysan" and several hundred of the "disaffected" are the authors of the suit.

Edeny in toto the statement that the necessary small bridges, and the road between the two points, could have been "put in good travelling order by the hands working one day more," the assertions of the "reliable gentlemen" to the contrary, notvithstanding. gentlemen" to the contrary, notwitostanding. Taking as a criterion the manner in which the hands have worked up to the present time, and the chances of the river against them, good judges estimate that the causeway never will be put in good travelling order.

The money necessary to defray the expenses

mentioned money in relation to this matter except to one man in Orangeburg. I depy ever having sent petitions to Orangeburg to obtain signatures for the repeal of the act, and knew nothing of the existence of any in the stores there.

I do say, and so do all others who are not blinded by prejudice or self-interest, that the construction of the causeway, the erection of the necessary bridges and the repairs afterwards, will be attended with much expense, and the citizens of Orangeburg generally, and particularly those residing within ten miles of the line of the road, will have this to bear.

I think I know the sentiments of the people I think I know the sentments of the people of Orangeburg who are assessed to work on this road, and to particularize, I will mention the names of those who want it, viz: whites, J. W. Cope, J. Cooner, J. D. Cleckley, commissioner, D. Quattlebaum, commissioner, bridge contracts, owner of a swamp field, and would-contracts, owner of a swamp field, and would-contracts. be merchant near the swamp. Colored, D.

The renator of Orangeburg will not have far te go to get back on his past actions, consider-ing how he was duped by the quast petition to the Legislature.

I doubt very much if "Fair Play" has ever seen the road or causeway about which he writes so knowingly. In conclusion, I will suggest to him not to take for granted hereafter any statements, which may be made to him by "reliable gentlemen," for these "reliable gentlemen" are generally huge frauds. 8.-I wonder if "Fair Play" does not own

P. S.—I wonder if "Fair risk" to be subset; and a lot in the corporate limits of Bamberg? and a tract, of land, which he is very anxious to sell. Tring contiguous, or nearly so, to this road? Wonder if he has not been employed as coursel by the defendants in the suit of which he complains so lustily? Would like to which he complains so lustily? w know it he is arguing to the purse.
